Ongoing Research Support

R01DK092919, NIDDK Role: co-investigator	04/01/2011-03/30/2016
Doctor-Teen Communication & Antihypertensive Adherence among Teens with CKD
This study will explore the communication patterns of clinicians and teens with CKD in regard to negotiation and brain storming workable treatment plans.
R10127044	Role: Principal Investigator with Mayo Clinic
04/01/11 – 03/31/16
Decision-Making About CAM Across the Cancer Continuum: An Observational Study
This study examines the extent to which patients and clinicians initiate and respond to the supplemental use of CAM in various stages of cancer treatment .
R01MH086449 Role: Principal Investigator	08/17/09 – 05/31/14
NIMH
Understanding Social Contributions to Disparities in Depression Care: US and UK
The proposed investigation is designed to contribute to the disentangling of physician-derived and patient-derived contributions to social bias that may exacerbate health disparities associated with the provision and receipt of depression care in the US and UK
Role: Principal Investigator
P20 MH086048-01A1 Role: co-investigator	04/09/10 – 01/31/15
NIMH
Center for Mental Health Services in Pediatric Primary Care
This project will develop and evaluate interventions to improve the delivery of mental health services in pediatric primary care.
1 P50 HL0105187-01 Role: co-investigator	07/15/10-03/31/15
NIH/NHLBI
Hopkins Center to Eliminate Cardiovascular Health Disparities
Our long-term goal is to create a multidisciplinary research center that improves CVD outcomes and reduces racial and ethnic disparities in care. To accomplish this goal, we will use principles of community-based participatory research to build strong ties among researchers, healthcare provider networks, community members, and policy-makers and accelerate the translation of evidence to clinical and public health practice and policy. We are building on strengths, prior work, and established relationships with the large African American (AA) population in Baltimore, and we will initially focus on hypertension. The Center will include 3 separate but related intervention studies to improve the identification, management, and outcomes of AAs with hypertension; 3 integrated and complimentary cores (Administrative, Shared Resources, and Training); an Internal Steering Committee; and a Community and Provider Advisory Board.
U54CA153710 Role: Co-investigator	09/01/10 – 08/31/15NIH/NCI
NCI
Community Networks Program: The Johns Hopkins Center to Reduce Cancer Disparities
The major goals of this center grant are to create the infrastructure to support community-driven research in reducing cancer disparities and to create related training opportunities for early-stage investigators.

THERE IS OTHER SUPPORT OVERLAP IN SCIENTIFIC, COMMITMENT, OR BUDGET BETWEEN THE PROPOSED PROJECT AND OTHER SUPPORT.

Role: Co-Investigator

08/06/09 – 08/05/12

Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation

Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health Training Program in Breast Cancer Disparities Research

The goals of this program will be to draw on the existing strengths of the School of Public Health to provide the intellectual environment and resources to develop scholars in breast cancer disparities, specifically among talented students who may lack resources to fulfill their intellectual potential in this important area.

SCP210

Role: Principal Investigator for Hopkins Site 07/01/11 – 06/30/12

Department of Veteran Affairs, HSR & D Project TEL 20-036

This project will provide quantitative and qualitative videotape analysis, including adaptation of the Roter Interaction Analysis System (RIAS) coding software for assessment of telemedicine visits.

R01HD0504037

Role: Principal Investigator

09/01/06 – 06/30/12(NCE) NIH

Amelioration of Literacy Deficits in Prenatal Care

To understand the relationships among print, conceptual and oral literacy dimension and to investigate the communication characteristics of deficits in these realms. We will work collaborative with low-literate women, and health literacy experts. We will also conduct a randomized trial to evaluate the effect of the intervention on a variety of outcomes.
